Riggins Construction & Management, Inc. was contracted to renovate and upgrade twenty-two existing multi-fixture restrooms for Toshiba America Information Systems, Inc.

Restrooms present unique design challenges as they are often neglected yet are frequently affected by changes in the building code. As a design-build contractor, we were able to work directly with the architect to ensure that every need of the client was met.

We are always pleased to not only meet the client's deadline, using a three-phase restroom renovation schedule which facilitated the continuance of the daily business operation, but to provide an aesthetically-pleasing finished product.

Restrooms Before The Upgrade

“The reality is that public restrooms matter to the public. The way a business or building treats its facilities is a reflection of its operating standards.”
